Bridge of the Future: Europe-Africa Bridge

RadioTech presenter Tom Burns interviews engineer Galal Hamdy.

Tom: What project are you working on now?

Galal: We're designing the world's longest bridge.

Tom: Where will it be?

Galal: Between Morocco and Spain. It'll connect Europe with Africa.

Tom: What are the specifications of the bridge?

Galal: It will be almost 15 km long. In our design, the bridge will have two spans. Each span will be 4800 m long.

Tom: That's a very long span. How will that be possible?

Galal: The bridge will have three steel pylons, on concrete piers. The pylons will be 1000 m high. The deck will be very light and strong. It'll be made of fibreglass.

Tom: Many engineers think you won't be able to build this bridge.

Galal: I don't agree. I think we'll complete it around 2030.
